New ACO EasyLine H50 Channel Drain

ACO is proud to announce the launch of the ACO Easyline channel system tailored for low-profile installations.

ACO Easyline is ideal for installations requiring a low profile and draining a smaller surface area, for example balconies, terraces, facades and thresholds.

The lightweight plastic channel eases installation, along with its inbuilt 90-degree corner option. The range of accessories allow for rainwater to be drained from the end, sides or underneath of the channel.

ACO Easyline is available in a black channel and matching grating or with a galvanised steel grating and is the ideal choice for domestic use, adding both function and style to your outdoor space.

ACO Easyline's low profile enables installation where depth is at a premium, but care should be taken to check the channel can adequately drain the paved surface.*

Features include:

- Ideal for domestic installations where a low profile channel is required such as balconies, facades and thresholds
- Quick and easy to install, including interlocking joints between channels for straight-run and right-angle installation
- Full range of accessories to facilitate end, side and underneath connection to surface water drainage
- Fully certified to Load Class A 15 BS EN 1433:2002

* A 5m run of Easyline A50 channel with a single outlet will drain up to 35m² paved area during a 50mm per hour rainfall event (in accordance with the guidance in Building Regulations for England 2015 Section H3 2.4).
